SMALL FLOWERING DAHLIAS

Small Flowering Dahlias, which include miniatures, pompoms and singles, are highly recommended for cutting. They keep well, arrange easily and artistically, are free bloomers and come into bloom thru late summer and early fall when colorful flowers are badly needed in that gap between the annuals and mums. Very easily grown. Can be planted as close as 2½ ft. apart and work nicely in mixed borders. Require very little fertilizer but do like water during blooming season. Pinch out top when plant gets 4 or 5 pair of leaves to produce a nice bushy plant with loads of flowers. Do not disbud. Should be staked and tied to prevent wind damage. Average height 2½ to 3 feet, but some grow taller.

MINIATURES AND SINGLES

Small flowering dahlias, formed like the large dahlias but from 2 to 4 inches across. Florist types run to 5 or 6 inches across.
